half of the members of the profession.

He expressed a wish that the teachers would always merit the words of commendation that had been offered them in the addresses given.

The convention then listened to a splendid address on "What is education," by Alie Villy, H.A., of Wetaskiwin. She dealt with the subject from the viewpoint of the different classes of the educated, philosopher, individualist, socialist, anarchist, historian and scientist.

A Little Game of Cards at Sea

(By Mabel Herbert Urner)
"It's after eleven—won't hardly have time for another ruber," declared Helen.

"Come to our stateroom," urged Mr. Dalmer, shuffling the cards. "We can play as late as we like down there."

"Thank you, not tonight," muttering Warren under the table. "I get a headache when I play too long."

"We'll have a game tomorrow," Warren drew out his wallet. "How does the score stand now?"

"That's two rubbers for us—615 points," Mr. Dalmer said, his pencil pointing to the line of figures.

"At two cents a point that's twelve-thirty," Warren counted out the money.

"You'll win it back tomorrow—and more," laughed Mrs. Dalmer, drawing her tulle scarf over her powdered shoulders.

"Let's have another drink," invited Mr. Dalmer, as the lounge steward stopped up the captain's glasses.

"We'll take a turn deck," Warren pushed back his chair.

Out in the dark shadow of the deserted deck, Helen's repressed resentment found expression.

"Twelve dollars! Why, when you let them make it two cents?"

"Oh well, if that's what they're used to playing for," pausing to reflect his cigar.

"We've never played that last rubber. If we stopped then you'd have lost only seven dollars."

"You're a bum sport. An evening of good bridge on shipboard is worth twelve bucks. Pay more'n that for a couple seats at the opera—and be bored stiff!"

"They'd suck luck with their dumb noses if we stopped to keep up with their rapid strides." And indeed it was almost nothing—and every time she was long on that sort."

"Yes, we didn't stand much chance against that run of luck. In that last hand he made it hearts on only an ace and two small ones—but she plunked down the king, jack and three others. Jove took that moon!"

"We'll have another drink," Warren said, turning his head to his steward behind a cloud of smoke.

"Shh—don't speak," she whispered. "Just listen."

"What makes you think he has this?" came Mrs. Dalmer's querulous voice.

"We're washing our clothes," Helen said, her eyes on the wash tub.

"Oh, he's good for four or five hundred. That's only chicken feed, but we're pretty poor. Not much doing on this boat. Lots of twits."

"Don't don't, they may hear you," whispered Helen to Warren as with a muttered oath, he started towards the port hole.

"There's that man in the deluxe suite. What's his name?"

"Morley. Yes, he has the coin, but he's a card shay—can't play. Somebody must have slipped him in. We'd better stick to Curtis. He's the egotistical, cocksure kind—they're always easy marks."

"From Boston that's all I know," Warren said, his words and letter of credit under his pillow. "Just me in the smoking room."

"I don't care for her—she's so artificial. Oh, look where you've put your coat. And I had it pressed just before we sailed." Rescuing his dinner jacket that he had crooked on the rock over his head.

"These yellow plums are great!" he was raving in his Bon Voyage basket.

"Peter, don't eat any more tonight. All that dinner and those sandwiches afterwards, and more fruit!"

"Now, I'm going to eat all I want on this trip," defiantly munching at another plum. "What in blazes?"

A lurch of the ship sent showering down upon him some magazines that Helen had stowed away the life preservers.

"I wonder they're out of the way up there," hastily she gathered them up. "Oh, here's an article I wanted you to read—Carl Sharski on Ocean Liners. About professional gamblers who make their living on these big boats."

"Huh, that's an old story. Don't worry, they won't get a chance to trim me. Never play cards with anybody you don't know. Where's my shipmate?"

But you don't know the Dalmers. Aren't they under your bed? You only met him this morning in the smoking room?"

"Oh, Dalmer's all right. He's a good fellow. I can spot a bumbler a mile off. Where the Sam Hill are those plums?"

The man must have shored back, tucking under his head with a coat hanger, she dissolved his slippers from behind a curtain.

"That thing open?" Warren scowled up at the ventilator in the top of their cabin. "Blow right on my head."

Reluctantly Helen pulled the cord that closed the vent. "The port hole was open, so always her greed was insatiable."

"Oh, I hope it's not going to be rough," at an ominous burp.

"Bougher, it is the bougher I sleep" as he slumped into bed. Then grimly: "If that youngster wakes me up, he'll be the trouble!"

Their shoes put out, the door bolted, the curtain drawn back from the partition over the berth, Warren finally in bed switched on the light.

She loved the nights on a steamer. Lying in a snug, warm berth, listening to the roar of the sea always brought a luxurious sense of security.

But now, the twelve dollars, and the further possible losses tomorrow, shadowed her thoughts.

Friday Afternoon

The field day sports took place at the exhibition grounds in the afternoon, when the events were about half completed. It was necessary to postpone the remainder of the program on account of the rain. We understand the other events will be run off shortly.

Leaving on Sunday, October 15, for the Lloydminster country, on a hunting trip, Mr. Gau and Mr. Hartman returned yesterday with a bag of twenty-nine geese and over one hundred ducks. They were accompanied on their hunting expeditions by Nick Zuchowski of Lloydminster. Five geese were shot at Manitou Lake just north of the town. The rest were shot in the valley. The hunting party was successful in getting ten. The shooting of ducks was only incidental, it was not until they were ready to leave that attention was given to getting a bag of these beauties which were present in large numbers.—Canadian.

RED CROSS SOCIETY MEMBERSHIP DRIVE NOVEMBER 5 TO 11.

Every person who becomes or continues to be a member of the Red Cross division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and who joins the membership and finance campaign to be doing his or her part to help it carry on with greater effort and vigor its work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and mitigation of suffering. This is the present program of the society and it has connection with an enviable record.

The development of the work, as it should be, is now being hampered by lack of funds.

This is the reason that the public appeal is appealing for public support during the campaign next month. Every person in Alberta who is financially able to do so, should be a member, and those who were numbered, after which the convention listened to an extremely interesting address by Dean Howes, of the University of Alberta on "The History of Agriculture." The balance of the evening was occupied in games and dancing.

The discussion of the different subjects were continued as on the previous day.

Reading and Literature—Grade I. to IV, Miss. L. Hamton; Grade V. to VIII, Miss. Henderson, of Ponoka. Miss. Mary Kudler gave a very interesting model lesson in phonics to grade I.

History and Citizenship—Grade I. to IV, Miss. Dickson; Grade V. to VIII, Miss. Inglis.

Competition—Grade I. to IV, Miss. Reid; grade V. to VIII, Miss. Henderson.

The time being short the other items on the program were omitted and the business of the meeting was taken up. The report of the nominating committee was heard, and the following nominations were made:

Hon. Press—M. O. Nelson.

Prof. E. A. Lynch, B.A.

Miss. O. Blakely.

The coming church

(By Byron Stauffer)

This was among the last published article of the late preacher and writer.

"Social service will be the supreme program of the church tomorrow. No other excuse for it will be accepted by thinking men from religious organizations."

"A Methodist Bishop visiting a Colvoco village of a thousand people was shown a Lutheran church, then a Baptist, then an Evangelical, then a Pentecostal. 'What's the difference?' asked the bishop. 'Don't they both believe the same doctrines? 'Oh, no,' exclaimed the native, 'The

PONOKA U. F. A. POLITICAL ASS'N

The annual meeting of the Ponoka U.F.A. Political association was held in the Empress Theatre on Saturday afternoon. There was a fair attendance, and the meeting was called to order by the chairman, C. C. Reed, who asked to be excused from presiding, and the chair was taken by T. B. Phillips. The Asst. Local, No. 23, U.F.A., on October 6th, 1922—"Whereas we believe this is a time when strict economy should be practised in all governmental affairs, and, whereas the members of the Ponoka U.F.A. are in agreement with the above, therefore be it resolved that the members of the Ponoka U.F.A. shall not be members of the Alberta Legislature for their service than other members of Canada; whereas we are of opinion that the Progressive party of Alberta by voting themselves $250 for one week's work in special session will lose prestige and the confidence of the electors of the province."

Therefore, be it resolved that we, the Asst. Local No. 23 of the United Farmers of Alberta, disapprove of the action taken by the members of the assembly, and that each member return the $250 of the indemnity to the province. And, whereas also urge that the sessional indemnity be also lowered.

On motion of C. C. Reed and W. A. Arndt, this resolution was carried. A motion by C. C. Reed and L. Jameson, "That the sessional indemnity of $200 be lowered to $150, was on a motion by H. Vold and W. Ferguson, referred to the locals for action.

Another resolution carried was—Approval of the action of the Progressive party in the federal house, "and that we are opposed to any union with any political party that will not in any way justify the identity of the Progressive party as now formed."

Other matters taken up were banking and currency, price of gasoline, better telephone service, etc.—Ponoka Herald.

The "Progressive" Party

(By C. W. Peterson, in Farm and Ranch Review)

We western farmers are very optimistic and very ambitious. Years ago we became disengaged with extensive commercialism and much effort, we organized to improve them.

A great wave of enthusiasm, in favor of the co-operative principle in marketing, swept over the prairie section from end to end. The farmers joined in every province, millions were subscribed to help organize co-operative commercial-undertakings.

Then, after a time, we found that we couldn't compete on all this. And, just the other objection was carried so the line of least resistance and carried on as common garden limited liability companies, such as we had had for years and years admittedly reviled and invariably blamed for all our troubles. . . . Whatever may have been the reason of this, we have not been able to compete on all this.

Now we have a new fact to play with. Something spectacular preferred. Why not politics? Certainly, that is the thing. Once we get into politics we will be whole world in our power.

But, hang it all! Here I am cheerfully selling my wheat below pre-war and pre-millennium—prices. I am not selling my livestock—I am just giving it away. Smart American men come across the boundary and pick up our cattle for a song—cheaper than we can get. We have to go to the market to compete with the rest of the world.

They are now planning to do this in every province in Canada, especially in the prairies.

Not alone are we ambitious and optimistic, but we also have a sense of humor. After creating multi-million dollar controlled grain selling organizations, we give the whole world a loud legation for a government controlled selling organization.

We have apparently no confidence in our government, but we have confidence in our own people.

They are now planning to do this in every province in Canada, especially in the prairies.

Not alone are we ambitious and optimistic, but we also have a sense of humor.

Looking Backward FROM THE TIMES' FILES

(October 23, 1902)

The council voted to sink a tank at the Merchants bank corner for storing grain for the winter, and the members of the bank thought that this town can boast of six churches, as the Swiss Presbyterian congregation propose commencing to build at once, on the lot, they recently purchased at the corner of Dufferin and Macleod streets, east.

A near accident happened to a Viking who was working on the bridge at Redberg's new bridge over the Piney. He was a regular hiker, allowing a 1500 lb. bison to fall. It just grazed his side. Neil Campbell had his hat knocked off by the bison.

Geo. B. Henwood arrived from Ontario on Wednesday to open a law office.

Judge Scott will hold the first sitting of the court here on November 10th.

G. M. Mayberry bought the jewelry stock of Ernest H. Hall.

O. H. Anderson from South Dakota has leased the new store on Railway street east, where he will conduct a general store business.

Last week a young man of about 18 years of age, who had a herd of cattle from the district, was sick.

A prairie fire was started near Hobema on Wednesday.

The fourth annual fair of the Wetaskiwin Agricultural society was a great success. There was a record number of exhibits.

The latest industry to locate here is a factory. Four men arrived from Chicago, who will have complete arrangements for suitable premises for the concern.

G. L. Gohard, Carl of the City Plumbing and Heating Store are at Edson installing a heating plant.

Next Monday will be Thanksgiving Day.

Messrs. Mills & Bearlso have purchased the Seligwood branch of Powley.

The first annual convention of the Wetaskiwin Teachers' Association in the Alexandra school on Thursday and Friday last. The officers elected were Mr. Hutchinson, B.A., of Wetaskiwin, president; Mr. Edwards of Leduc, vice president; and Miss Morrison, of Wetaskiwin, secretary-treasurer.

Rev. John J. Proden passed away Thursday evening at the age of sixty five years.

Lougheed Fire FIGHTER-BLOWN THROUGH WINDOW

Lougheed, Oct. 21.—With the fall came the damage known now, it is possible to give a more detailed account of Thursday's disastrous fire. Fire fighters and water carriers turned out in mass and did a splendid service to the community in confining the conflagration to the block in which the fire originated.

The damage was so great that it was impossible to save the contents of the buildings. Brown's hall, the ground floor laundry office, the furniture store, the shoe hospital, as well as Shausey's, known as the Lougheed Hardware, are, with their contents, a heap of debris.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Some believe it was first rising from the hall roofed in by the piano in the hall falling to the floor beneath, which suggests that this was the seat of the trouble.

One man, running a great risk, was throwing out documents, etc., from the office, when "bang" went a five gallon can of wood alcohol and he was blown through the open window a distance of several feet and by some means escaped uninjured.

When once the rank and file of these religious workers realized that the man, woman and even physical spirit of the church's supreme task in any community, they will take matters into their own hands and put an end to the present intolerable situation.

They are now planning to do this in every province in Canada, especially in the prairies.

And this is the reason why we have lost the church's supreme task in any community, they will take matters into their own hands and put an end to the present intolerable situation.

HUNDREDS OF FIRES BURNING IN NORTH ALBERTA FORESTS

Edmonton, Oct. 23—Forest fires have played havoc with the heavy stands of spruce timber in northern Alberta this summer, says Colonel H. A. Jackson, forest ranger in charge of the same Township and Range.

The geologist of the company is Professor Warren of the University of Alberta, who received his training at the Universities of Toronto and Edinburgh.

Professor Warren personally inspected the company's holdings and made an extremely favorable report as to the chances of oil being found in paying quantities on the company's holdings. Professor Warren is expecting the oil to be found in the pebbly limestone in this township, and oil is still more interesting that the oil does not come from any great depth. In fact he has stated in his report that the oil would in all probability be encountered before the thousand foot level was reached, his personal opinion being that the first chance of finding oil would occur when the drilling had reached the 740 foot level and that oil would likely be found in the oil-bearing limestone about 150 or 200 feet further.

When a competent geologist, such as Professor Warren, makes a report that oil will be found in the oil-bearing limestone, it is safe to say that the chances of finding oil are good.

The Honorable W. R. Motherwell, Minister of agriculture, announces that the hog grading examinations will be made effective on October 30, 1922. In the meantime, the new hog grading staff is to be given a thorough course of instruction at the Toronto stock yards, so that the official grading regulations as established will be uniformly applied at all stock yards and abattoirs in Canada.

An opportunity is at hand to give your child the very finest of instruction in violin. Prof. Touche who is visiting our city each Saturday afternoon is a graduate of the Conservatoire de Paris and has had from the teachers some of the best that Chicago has to offer. The last two years of his studies were with Hugo Kortschak, a pupil of the world renowned Oktokor Sevcik, who, while teaching for one year at Ithaca, N.Y., received as high as sixty dollars for one lesson. The Bohemian government would not allow him to leave his country for a longer period than one year. If interested, see his professional card in this paper.
